

Pour about an inch of cream into the container and snap or screw the lid on as tight as you can. Then shake it, rattle it, and roll it like the ocean waves churned poor Moo's stomachs. (This might take a while...remember, Moo had quite a journey!) If you churn your container long and hard, you'll end up with butter, just like Moo did!

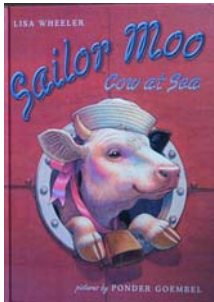

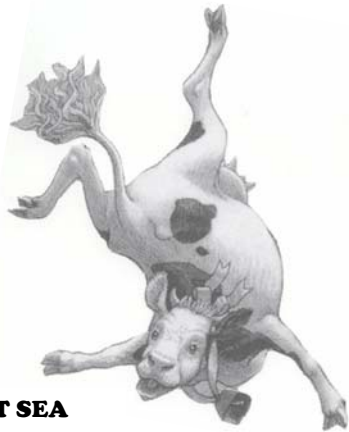

- You need:
- heavy whipping cream
 - small, airtight containers: plastic food savers or baby food jars

Sailor Moo's Ocean Butter

From the kitchen of Lisa Wheeler...

Moo loved the way the ocean sang. "Like moo-sic," she would utter, as rocking, rolling ocean waves Would churn her milk to butter.
